

There's A Great Day Coming!

All of us have anxiously anticipated a "special day." This day may have been our birthday, anniversary or even Christmas Day. We were eager to make plans and preparations for the day to be special. For our birthdays and anniversaries we have sought just the right card and gift and have planned to eat out at one of our favorite places. In varying degrees, we have all eagerly anticipated Christmas Day. For the younger, it was the anticipation of the gifts. For the older it was the anticipation of family being together and getting one of mom's special meals.

We sing a song from our songbooks containing the words "There's a great day coming." These words describe the greatness of the Day of Judgment. This seems like a paradox to many because of varying stages of belief (or unbelief, as the case may be). For the child of God, it will indeed be a great day; one for which we have hopefully been preparing all our lives. It is upon this day, if found faithful, we will hear those sweet words declaring that we can enter the rest that is prepared for us. We can only partially anticipate what that will mean. I am eagerly anticipating that great day. Are you?
